The hypograsy and lusincerity of the republican party were naver more conepicuously exhibited than in the case of Mr James C. Matthews, of this city, nominated by President Cleveland for Registrar of Deeds of the District of Columbis, rejected once by the Sensie and reported adversely for the according. There is no preience that Mr Maithewadaca not powers, to an eminent degree, the qualifications necessary for that office. In that respect he is as ful ly equipped as his predecessor. The rea son assigned for his rejection by these republic, a Sanators who were blant enough to bluri out the trath was that Mr. Mat. there is a colored democrat. A negro who declines to wear the hadge of political ser visude prescribed by the republican party, republicans of the United States Senate. Daring the dort I me Mr. Multhews has he tonehown marked chility, gentlemanly courtney and administrative tact. He has made himself very popular and has earned the respect and admiration of the lawyers and business men, irrespective of politics, who have had occasion to transact business in his office. The reforms and changes he has made in the office have been noted with marked approval, and it is generally acknowledged that he is a decided improve ment on Fred Douglass. - [Albany Argue.

The board of fown trustees held a meet ing Friday morning and granting salvons license to Gentry Campbell and Otto Fischer at $500 each, and their ealoons were opened to the public. On Mondey night, in view of the fact that the regular terms of the public echools will expire this week, the board appropriated $350 to the white and $150 to the colored schools of the town for their continuence three mouths longer. Thus, hig : liceuse is on top; the consumers of epirium eliquors pry for educating the children of the town and the present hoard of trustees deserve the praise of every good citizen - Midway Clipper.

I am longing to get back to Kentucky to tell what I have learned since I left there, Davis, to those who already believed a parl of whei the dear LORD has tought me. To ait a pupil in the "school of grace" and learn fresh lessons every day, what a life of increasing joy it is!

We had the unexpected pleasure of a visit from our cousins Heber and Mary Crett last Friday, preceded by one from their on ly son, Hugh, who stumbled across the troupe while nn a husiness trip, earlier in the week. Our dear relations only remained 24 hours, but it led to an invitation to visit them and hold a meeting at McComb, Pike conniy, this State. They are only 100 miles obove New Orleans and we may go to that city, and then work our way northwards as the warm weather compele. But we have no plan about it. We expect to leave Greenwood for McComb next Friday. This is Monday.

We are all delightfully well. The sun is out in full glory again and the drearings of rain and gloom ere gone for awhile. The folke here have gone to gardening. Some early things aiready up. I eaw lettuce and radishee peeping above ground at one place. The hens are singing about the yard in their ldiotic, abstracted way, heralding the season of eggs in ahundance, and everything wears the air of, say May, with us It seems a little "previoue," but I apeak of things as they are. Boynton's letters from Washington teem with proofs of Grant's drunken habits, and the Field Marshal laughe with a ghouldish glee, as he points with pride to "I told you sol" This is nice work for a republican sheet and is in strange contrast to this beautiful tribute from the Courier-Journal, a rebel sympathizer: "Gen. Grant's faulte were many, but his fame is the common heritage of his country. It rests ou a cure foundation, and over his shortcomings we should rightly cast the mantle of charity. As the tree falls, so shall it lie, Grant's life is written in deeds that are not to he forgotten. He has told his own story with wonderful emplicity, directness and clearness. It is a marvelous etory, written by one unused to words, that he might not leave his family dependent on patriotic gratitude. #### The Governorship of Kentucky,

The contest for the Gubernstorial nomi nation warms up as the time for the final decision draws near. A feature of that contest manifesting liself more and more fully as time moves on apace, is truly to be deplored. The feature is the outgoowth of an unfortunate dispute which having been enbuilted to the arbitrament of arms, we finally cettled and forever, almost a quarter of a century sgo. What was our opinion or yours at that time, is a question which now concerns no one; and whether we stood in the ranks with the gallant Southron and fought for our honest convictions, and lost, or whether we walked side by side with the noblemen who championed the cause of "liberty and the Union, ooe and Insepera ble," and trlumphed, or whether we fought at all, should be no question us to our finess for Governor or for any other office within the gift of a now united and prace ful people

Notwithstanding the appeals which these facts should make, and do make, to the intelligence of Kentuckiane, this "martial" sentiment promises to be a factor, and a strong one, in the selection of the standard bearers of our party in the approaching Kentucky State Conventi n.

For Governor, Gen. Simon Belivar Buck ner moves upon the works of the parly as the hero of Fort Donelson, as brave a so!dier as drew a sword for the "lost cause" and as able a general as ever led a "forlorn hope;" and he moves with a following of which any man should be proud, but this brilliant military record does not fit him for euch high civic honors. Still the veter an general la a true Kentuckian, a sound Democrat, an accomplished, honorable and intelligent citizen and would do honor to a higher position even than that to which he aspires.

Col. G. A. C. Holl, the distinguished and beloved son of a section whose "people dur ing the late civil war were intensely sonthern in their feelings," and himself a "gallant Culonel of the Confederacy," promises to cut no ualv figure in this contest. H's friends claim for him that he was not only a brave and loyal Southerner, but that the experience gained in the balle of legiala tion and a brief period as acting Lieuten anl Governor, fite him in an eminent de gree for Governor of this great State, and we do not say the claim le unjust, but why tell ue he fought, when it can ln ne wire affect hie worthiness or fitness for the position sought?

Capt. Thomas H. Hines is credited with devleing means for, and helping to e'fect the escape from the Federal prison at Columbne, Ohio, of himself, five other sol diere and the martyred confederate chieftain, Gen. John H. Morgan. The South ern heart still warms to the brave Captain for his part in this daring exploit, and for other valuable services rendered during il e "late unpleasantness," but that should not make him Governor of Kentucky. But he, too, like Gen. Buckner and Col. Holt, posseeses other qualifications and these should be considered if he is to be regarded as a gubernatorial quantity.

But there is another, last in our summa ry but not least in the hearle of his people, a noble Roman among them all, a stordy yeoman of braine withal, an intellectual giant, honeety and integrity as rugged and firm as the "rock ribbed hille" whose neighbor he le and whose friend he has proven himself to be, whose undivided support he will carry with him into the Convention in the flowery month of May! That man is Hon, John D. Harris, of Madison county. Senator Harris was not a soldier, but he asks nothing on this account. Were there an advantage to be gained in being the pin sessor of a model war record, he would cheerfully waive it. His friends bring him helore the people upon his record as a man, and propose to live or die by the decision of that people. Taey point with no limit ed degree of pride to his record as a Sens tur in the last Legislature of Kentucky They invite a careful survey of his hasi ness career from the beginning of an honorable and useful life, and fear not the reault. They challenge the strictest examt untion into Lie standing as a demicrat, and expect to profit thereby. They pit him against the bravest soldier of them all for true bravery, for unequaled courage. Courage to do right; courage to faithfully discharge a duly; courage to maintain the lognity and honor of this grand old Commonwealth as her chief executive. Herein should be the gulding slar, shining over the political manger in which lies the child of promise of Kentucky democracy.

No disparagement whatever is meant to the other gentlemen, elther of whom would no doubt make a good Governor, but Sena tor Harris, we are brought to believe, would make a far better. Honestly believing so, we shall labor in season and out for his nomination; but, should this fail, we here cheerfully and falthfully pledge our hearty and earnest support to the nominee, who ever he may be, satisfied in the conviction that the parly of the people, the democrat le party, knows, and will direct all for the heat .- [ M. T. Craft in London Leader.

One of ble enthusiastic admirers says. "Gen. Buckner fears nothing-not even death." It's only when the still, small, six montha'-old voice of Simon Bollvar, Jr., breaks silence that his fearless pa bustles. -[Glasgow News.

ARCTIC ANIMALS.

METHODS OF HUNTING EMPLOYED BY THE MUTES OF ALASKA.

Habits of the Seal-Summer Sport-The Clamsiness of the Walrus-The Polar Bear in His Icy Habitation-White

Nature soms to have previded certain animals peculiarly adapted to the hyper-borean region, and eminently fitted to afford sustenance to the race who have to withstand the exigeueies and severe climatic changes of an Arctic zone. The principal animals inhabiting the waters of northwestern Alaska are the various members of the seal family. During the winter the seals, rising on the surface, strike against the thin young ice and mak a hole. Through these holes they erawl upon the smooth surface and lie sleeplng at the brink. In the early spring the first glimpse of sun induces them to forsake their watery homes, and to bask in the warm rays seems to afford great pleasure to these amphildious creatures. When lying in these positions the hunter crawls upon all fours in as stenithy a manner as possible.

When, after a gale, the ice is broken up into small leads n net made of stont seal hido is stretched across the chasm, and the seals rising to Idow become entangled in the meshes. Within the last decade breeh loa Iing flearns have been used by the Mutes In hunting, last previous to their introduc tion spears made with copper or iron heads were used, the frame for carrying the spear being carved from walrus ivory. To the end of the spenr n long coil of seal line is attached, to which at intervals bladders of the seal are fastened. In these ways the hardy natives hunt the animal which affords them not only food, but also oil for their lamps and hides for their clothing. When the ley wind sweeps over the frozen expanse of sen carrying with it small pellicles of snow that striking the face, cut the skin like a charge of shot; when for and snow mist envelop the landscape, a Mute lumber has to possess grit and nerve to face conditions that no white man has ever yet done.

SUMMER SPORTS. In the summer, when the ocean in again free from the grasp of the iceberg, seals dis port themselves at the mouth of every stream and rivulet in order to catch fish or seafless. Then the kyack is called into requisition. In this frail construction of skin and wood the hunter, launched upon the waves, paddles quietly and gently upon the seal until within range. Naturally a very inquisitive animal, an Imitation of the croon ing noise peculiar to the phocæ is sufficient to make a seal swim on the top of the water with its head protruding, thereby insuring a good object to alm at. Whistling is also resorted to in attracting the seal to the surface. The variety of senl known as the "smooth black hair" is highly prized by the natives throughout the territory of Alaska north of the Aleutian islands. Its large hide forcus the covering for boats and canoes, and also serves as boot soles entirely impervious to water. Saddle backs are rarely seen to the north of Point Hope. These are very handsome and conspicuous animals as they lie basking in the sun upon the ice. Their color is a deep chocolate brown, with a broad band of white, shaped like a saddle, which extends from the back around the belly. and from this peculiar marking they derive their name.

Forty years ago immense herds of the bulky, walrus might be seen disporting in the waters of the Behring and Arctic seas. Owing to the prices which their ivory tusks were valued at hunting of these plunipeds became a source of profit to the whalers. As a consequence of Indiscriminate slaughter their numbers have been sensibly reduced, and except around Bristol bay mud flats and upon Walrus island of the Pribyloff group but few walrus are now seen in the Alaskar

There is perhaps no animal in nature that appears so clumsy and so ill adapted to locomotion as this enormous hrute. Upon land they are utterly helpless. When striving to effect a landing upon an ice floe or rocks they use their fore flippers to hold on by and wait for the assistance of each wave to hoist them up to the desired spot. In hunting the walrus the rifle is used by the natives, but it would be safe to say that within the past few years not more than a hundred have been killed between St. Lawrence island and Point Barrow, owing to their shy nature. While walrus ivory has so depreclated in value that it does not pay to bring it to this port, a demand has sprung up for the hides, which have been found to make the finest and most durable leather for belting purposes. The use of the tusks that form the appendages to the walrus' head is to enable the animal to dig for chans and other shell fish and also the bulb roots of sea weeds that are to be found at the mouths of the numerous small streams and creeks that flow into the Arch.

WHALE AND BEAR.

Schools of white whale-belign, or gram pus-are the first of the cetae are family that appear along the Alaskan chores when the ice be, no tellerak up. Their gleaning white color is sensibly violable role by gracefully clayer reducing years and calling son Following the repark as it draws to north and wist, the compassion to both fore runners of their gigantic brothers, the bow head whale ballma, in their passegs to the northern waters. In hunting these white whales the natives on Kotzebne sami display great ingenuity. A fleet of kynoks spread into a semicircle fucleses the school, gradually drawing the affrighted (ish not eshall low water, until, being unable to escape by reason of grounding upon the beach, they fall easy victims to the spear or harpours of their limiters. On the const to the north of the sound the ritle again serves as a wenpon to kill the beluga. White whale blubber resembles limburger cheese in taste, while the ficsh, if of a calf, is tender and palatable. The fins when boiled and covered with vinegar are an excellent substitute for Ursus Americanus or the white polar bear Is also a food supplier for the Mutes. The extent of bruin's travels in the Arctic region are far and wide. Observations by Capt. Healy, of the United States revenue marine, prove the fact that the polar bear's southern limit of range is St. Mathew island-(60 de grees, 50 minutes north latitude in the Beh ring pea. I helieve that a few of these bear were seen some years ago near the Seal Islands. Probably the season was a late one, and they were seen upon a large ice flee drifting. At St. Mathews the polar bears have lairs and dens among the rocky glens that diversify that island. In summer the hairy coat of the polar bear turns to a dingy yellow, and its pelt then becomes useless. These hears are arraut cownrils, and will not attack any one unless there are two or three in company, As soon as they seent a man approaching they run namy as fast as they can. There are but few cocords of a bear killing any native along the northwestern coast. The Mutes are very partial to white bear meat, but the blabber they reject and even the dogs, unless they are very hungry, turn up their noses at the oily mass. It is almost an Impossibility to obtain an entire sklu of any kind of bear The Mutes throughout the territory cut off the head and claws and either throw them into the sea or running water or else hury them in the ground. This is done to enable the hunters to kill ruore bears, and the idea is that if the other bears see the heads or claws of their dead friends they will leave the district, -San Francisco

WHEN GRADY WAS STARVING.

Incident In the Early Life of the Brilliant Journalist.

It is just about ten years ago-no, it's eleven—that Grady arrived in Washington, on his way from New York to Atlanta, e very hungry man. As he says himself in telling the story: "I had been to New York to seek employment as a correspondent for The Herald. Mr. Bennett had appointed me the correspondent for The Herald at a good salary for the states of Georgia, South Carolina and Florida. I did not like to ask him for an advance; in fact, I gave him to understand by my manner that I had a pocketful of money. But, as a matter of fact, I had so little that when I got to Washington I had nothing left except 50 cents and my ticket to Atlanta.

"Well, I knew that it was a long way to Atlanta, and that I would be apt to be hungrier even than I was then before I got home: I said to myself: 'Shall I spend all this money now on one good-by square meal or shall I spend it in hits on my wny down?' I concluded flually that, luasmuch as no one of the little bites I might get on the way home would give me even temporary satisfaction. I had better epend the whole oil cents for the ldggest meal I could get and then hold out as best I could. So I went into an eating house and said to the proprietor: 'Give me as much to ent as you can for 50 cents.' He did so, and I ate it. I never ute so much in my life before or slace.

On the strength of that meal I went on all right until we got to Danville, where we Ishkatea Jouanal, Stantord, Ky. 197-line. were delived for some reason three or four hours beyond the schedule time. This delay, of course, I had not reckoned on. After n while we got started again, however, and we got on all right so fur as the train was concerned all the way home. But I suffered the tertures of Tantalus. I remember that an old woman had got on near Danville with a big, old fashioned cheese box in her arms. By and by, just as the hunger began to take a good grip on me, she took off the lid. It was her lunch bax. She drew out all sorts of eatables, one after the other, and ate of each sparingly, throwing the remnant out of the car windew. Oh, how exasperatingly tantalizing it was. I remember most distinctly a delicately browned chicken and a deep, dark old fashloned pumpkin ple. That wretched old woman just tasted that chicken, just nibbled at that pie, and then throw the rest away while I sat starving in the next seat. "-Washington Cor. Philadelphia Rec.

THE MODEL CHURCH.

Well, wite, i've found the model church. And worship'd there to-day; It made me think of good old times, Before my hair was gray, The meeting house was finer built, Than they were years ago, liut then I found when I went in, It was not built for show.

The sexton did not set me down, Away back by the door; He knew that I was old and deaf, And saw that I was poor, He must have been a Christian iuan, Haled me boidly through, The long siele of that crowded church, Ta find a pleasant pew. I wish you'd heard the singing, wile,

It had the old-time ring; The preacher said with trumpet voice, Let ail the people sing : 'Did Coronation' was the lune The music upward roli'd, Till the't I beard the angel-choir,

Strike all their harps of gold. My desiness seemed to mait away, My spirit caught tha fire; l joined my feeble, trembting voice, With that melodious shoir;

And sang se in my youthful days, "Let angel's prostrate tali; Bring forth the royal diadem. And crown blus Lord of all." I tell you, wife, It did me good

To sire that by mn once more, I felt like some wrecked mariner Who gets a glympse of shore. I simost want to tay aside This weather-bestsn form. And anchor in the blessed pert.

Forever from the store.. Twas not a flowery sermen wite But almple gospel truth; it fitted humb'e men like me; In suited hopeful youth, To win immertal souls to Curist.
